 b The burden estimates assume rates of 85 percent eligibility, 80 percent consent, and 80 percent response. All non-consenting households (20 percent of the attempted sample) and two-thirds of the ineligible households (10 percent of the attempted sample) are reported in the non-respondents panel. One-third of ineligible households (5 percent of the attempted sample) are included in the respondents panel. This is because they could be eligible at the time of the baseline interview but exit SNAP pre-implementation and therefore become ineligible post-interview.
 c There are no attachments associated with the administrative data collection because the format will vary based on each demonstration project.
