

Objectives of the VOV Benchmark Study

- 1) To provide VBA with a comprehensive assessment of Veterans' experiences across each VBA benefit/service channel
- 2) Survey data results will enable both an integrated view of how well the VBA is servicing Veterans for Leadership as well as Area-level and Benefit Line specific (e.g. Education, Compensation) information
- 3) Quantify importance of each Veteran touchpoint and its impact on their overall satisfaction with VBA
- 4) Provide actionable recommendations to VBA that will increase Veteran satisfaction
- 5) Support statutory and congressional mandates across the lines of business

Survey Design

All surveys were created in collaboration with VBA Leadership and Benefit Line stakeholders, and by leveraging the J.D. Power and Associates (JDPA) 'Customer Experience Measurement Approach' and best research practices. In addition, JD Power consulted OMB's Standards and Guidelines for Statistical Surveys

The JDPA approach provides a framework that enables integrating data across different business lines while also measuring experiences within each business lines

For VBA, this balance is achieved by first assessing each Veteran touchpoint with VBA and determining whether it is an EVENT/TRANSACTION driven or whether it is SERVICE/ON-GOING RELATIONSHIP driven (e.g., on-going servicing of a benefit).

VBA's EVENT/TRANSACTION surveys are those designed to evaluate a specific interaction or activity. Enrolling into a benefit or calling into a call center are two examples of specific triggers that prompt an event survey. The EVENT surveys in the benchmark study include enrollment in Education, Compensation or Pension, and Vocational Rehabilitation & Employment.

EVENT survey sample plans* are designed to obtain Veteran feedback soon after the event as possible to determine a general baseline for the ongoing delivery of benefits. For example, the C&P enrollment surveys, Veterans will be surveyed within 30 days of application. In contrast, given the high volume of transactions, Veterans calling into call centers are surveyed within 24- 72 hours.

VBA's SERVICE/ON-GOING RELATIONSHIP surveys are those designed to evaluate an on-going activity. Receiving Veteran feedback how they are experiencing servicing of their Education, Compensation, or Pension benefits are three examples of on-going activities. The RELATIONSHIP surveys that include the servicing of Home Loans, Vocational Rehabilitation & Employment, and Specialty Adapted Housing grants. Sample plans* for RELATIONSHIP surveys are designed to ensure that the Veteran has had sufficient time experiencing the service. For example, the sample frame for Compensation and Servicing include Veterans who have been receiving benefits from 6-18 months.

Integrating Results

Although the benchmark study covers both event and relationship studies, both of which span different benefit lines, results will be integrated to enable an overall assessment. Integration can occur because of 2 primary survey design features. The first is the use of standards. The approach is to apply standard scales, wording and question order to enable comparability.

For example, all of our experience rating items use the same 10 point scale and when we ask a Veterans their likelihood informing other Veterans of the benefit we use a common 4 point scale. Additionally, where there is comparability across benefit lines on other items, such as obtaining information about the benefits, we ask the same questions and answer options.

Standard wording of items have been a hallmark of JDPAs measurement approach and cover all core experience dimensions: people, process, presentation, product and, when applicable, price or cost/value. Example of core people items are knowledge, concern, ease, and timeliness are examples of core process items. Additionally, all VBA benchmark surveys also contain an overall rating of the benefit line and an overall rating of all non VBA benefits. The structure of the questionnaire is ordered such that general questions come at the beginning of the survey and include such things as learning about the benefit and method of obtaining information. Following these general questions are experience rating question, then client loyalty and any open ended and optional items.

Contained within this document is an example of the alignment between event and relationship surveys. The tab label "Event (enroll) survey comp" contains a side by side comparisons of the C&P and education enrollment surveys. The tab labeled "Relationship (service) comp" contains a side by side comparison of surveys used in compensation, pension and education servicing.

The second survey design feature that enables comparability is our index methodology. The JDPAs index model is a detailed assessment of the customer experience. The index approach uses statistical methods to determine what elements of the experience are most important to driving overall experience. These weights are then applied to each experience rating item to obtain a weighted experience score that ranges for 100 (very low) to 1,000 (the very best)

The model has been used extensively throughout our organization within 27 commercial industry's to compare competing companies, to assess change over time, to determine areas most critical to customer satisfaction, and to highlight potential improvement opportunities by examining areas with high importance and low performance relative to the competition, customer expectation, or industry benchmarks

* Sample plan--details of the benchmark sample plan by study can be found in the Sample plan tab and each plan was designed to have sufficient data to yield precision of importance weights that are within +/- 2% (on a 100% scale) and +/- 4 points (on a 1,000 point)

 If needed, details of the index methodology will be provided

Compensation and Pension Enrollment

Compensation sample population definition: Individuals who have received a decision in the past 30 days (includes those who were found eligible on a new or subsequent claim and those who have been denied and are not appealing the decision)

Pension sample population definition: Individuals who have received a decision in the past 30 days (includes those who were eligible on a new claim, and those who were denied and are not appealing the decision)

C&P enrollment items

Rationale

Satisfaction with the enrollment experience may be higher or lower dependent upon Veterans' informational needs and usage patterns during their application. The informational needs and usage patterns will be determined in this section. These questions will help us differentiate Veteran satisfaction based on benefit informational needs and usage, identify areas where improvements to the process can occur and prioritize them based on the impact of the Benefit Information factor to overall Veteran satisfaction.

This will be used to assess Veteran point-of-entry and most frequent source for finding information about VA benefits and to evaluate usage patterns. This information will be used in the context of overall satisfaction with benefit information, including ease of accessing, availability, usefulness, and clarity of information and identifying information sources where any of these attributes has the potential for improvement.

This question will assess the optimal channel of communications to help maintain an optimal communication strategy for outreach to Veterans about their benefits.

This question will assess the optimal frequency of communications, in addition to the number of communications, to help maintain an optimal communication strategy for outreach to Veterans about their benefits.

This question will help to assess the most desired methods of communication about VA benefits or services and help guide the strategy for information outreach to Veterans.

Satisfaction with the benefit information represents one of the main elements of Veterans' experience with the enrollment for their benefit. These items represent key attributes in the enrollment process and will be compared to other factors to determine the areas of improvement with the greatest overall impact. These metrics will also allow us to compare the experience of Veterans with different information usage patterns and informational needs during the enrollment for their benefit.

Satisfaction with the enrollment experience may be higher or lower dependent upon Veterans' level of contact and issue resolution during and immediately after the enrollment process. The level of contact will be determined in this section. These questions will help us differentiate Veteran satisfaction based on level of contact and issue resolution, identify areas where improvements to the process can occur and prioritize them based on the impact of the Contact factor to overall Veteran satisfaction.

This question allows us to assess whether or not someone has had a contact with VA about their benefit recently enough to evaluate their experience with the contact. Individuals who have had recent contact with VA about their benefit may exhibit different levels of satisfaction than those who have not had recent contact. This question allows us to assess the variation between these two groups.

The reason for calling may contribute to the satisfaction related to the call experience. It is important to understand how satisfaction varies based on the type of call. This information will be used in conjunction with the VBA Call Center Satisfaction Research to analyze methods of contact/resolution.

Understand the specific reason for the call to help identify potential needs of various groups of Veterans and the ability of VA to respond to those needs. This information may assist in developing actionable recommendations for training, information communication, etc. This information will be used in conjunction with the VBA Call Center Satisfaction Research to analyze methods of contact/resolution.

Veterans' experiences with contacting VA may differ based on the method they use for contact. This may highlight contact methods that are used most frequently by Veterans and help identify processes VA can use to optimize those communication channels.

Veterans who have their issue resolved upon contacting VA may have different levels of satisfaction than those who do not have their issue resolved. This will allow us to set benchmarks for issue resolution and identify areas where contact can be improved based on the reason or nature of the call. This information will be used in conjunction with the VBA Call Center Satisfaction Research to analyze methods of contact/resolution.

This is important because it allows us to evaluate the reasons why there may be different levels of resolution depending on the nature and or reason for the call and assist in developing actionable courses of action based on study results.

Satisfaction with Contacting VA represents one of the main elements of Veterans' experience with the enrollment for their benefit. These items represent key attributes in the ongoing servicing process and will be compared to other factors to determine the areas of improvement with the greatest overall impact. These metrics will also allow us to compare the experience of Veterans with different levels of contact during and immediately following the enrollment for their benefit.

Satisfaction with the servicing experience may be higher or lower dependent upon the level of interaction a Veteran has with VBA during the application process. The level of interaction will be determined based on the various experiences a Veteran might have during the application for benefits. Questions focused on these various experiences will help us differentiate Veteran satisfaction based on the various touch points related to their benefit eligibility and application, identify areas where improvements to the process can occur and prioritize them based on the impact of the Benefit Eligibility and Application Process factor to overall Veteran satisfaction.

Veteran satisfaction with the application process may differ based on whether or not they received information about the application process.

Veteran satisfaction may differ based on the method they used to apply for their benefit. This will help to identify areas where Veterans are experiencing difficulty with the process and potential opportunities for improvement.

This question will be used to document receipt of the letter that is sent upon application submittal and evaluate how receipt of the document may tie to the Veteran experience.

Veteran satisfaction may differ based on whether they had difficulty understanding the information provided in the standard form letter. Since information in the letter is intended to assist Veterans, this information will also help us understand if the letter is serving the intended purpose.

Veterans who felt the letter was not completely clear may reach out to VBA for clarification. This question will be evaluated based on the Veterans' level of satisfaction to determine whether or not the additional level of contact impacts the Veterans' experience positively or negatively.

Veteran satisfaction may differ based on whether or not they have to provide additional information as a supplement to their original application. This will help us identify an area of potential improvement based on a comparison of levels of satisfaction between those who did have to submit additional information versus those who did not.

Among those who submitted an application for benefits, Veteran satisfaction may differ based on the method they used to submit additional information. This will help to identify areas where Veterans are experiencing difficulty with the process and potential opportunities for improvement.

This question will help to assess the most desired methods of communication about VA benefits or services and help guide the strategy for information outreach to Veterans.

Veteran satisfaction may differ based on whether or not they received a letter requesting additional information in support of a claim. This will help us identify an area of potential improvement based on a comparison of levels of satisfaction between those who received a letter requesting additional information in support of a claim versus those who did not.

Veteran satisfaction may differ based on whether or not they have to provide duplicate information after submitting their original application. This will help us identify an area of potential improvement based on a comparison of levels of satisfaction between those who did have to submit duplicate information versus those who did not.

It is important to determine the types of information that are typically provided more than once to develop actionable recommendations related to reducing redundant processes. This question will assist in determining actionable recommendations for improving the Veteran experience related to providing duplicate information.

Satisfaction with benefit eligibility and application process represents one of the main elements of Veterans' experience with the benefit enrollment process. These items represent key attributes in the enrollment process and will be compared to other factors to determine the areas of improvement with the greatest overall impact. These metrics will also allow us to compare the experience of Veterans with different levels of engagement with VBA during enrollment for their benefit.

Veterans who understood the decision may be more satisfied with the process overall than those who did not understand the decision. This allows us to measure whether or not Veterans understand the information they are given and potentially identifies an area where the Veteran experience can be improved.

Veterans who have received information about how to appeal may be more satisfied with the process than those who have not received this information.

This question will be combined with Q18 to assess variations in satisfaction based on the clarity of information Veterans receive. This is a question that will assist in determining a potential area for improving the Veteran experience.

Satisfaction with the benefit entitlement represents one of the main elements of Veterans' experience with the enrollment for their benefit. These items represent key attributes in the ongoing servicing process and will be compared to other factors to determine the areas of improvement with the greatest overall impact. These metrics will also allow us to compare the experience of Veterans with different levels of engagement with VBA during the enrollment for their benefit.

All factors will be assessed in the context of the overall satisfaction score to understand the relative importance of each factor on Veterans' overall satisfaction.

Overall satisfaction with each benefit line at the enrollment and servicing level will be evaluated in the context of the overall experience with VA to understand the relative impact of different experiences across benefit lines.

Veterans with a more positive experience with the benefit line and VA overall may be more likely to positively advocate VA to their peers. This question will help identify changes in advocacy based on changes in the level of satisfaction over time.

Veterans' may have additional information related to their experience that will help understand and interpret their overall experience. This may include elements of the experience that are not easily captured in quantitative form.

Veterans who have different experiences in the enrollment for their benefit may have different levels of satisfaction or exhibit different needs based on how they are using their benefit payment. For example, someone who is using their benefit payment for savings may be less impacted than someone who is using it for a rent/mortgage payment. This helps assess Veterans' needs.

Purpose of item

This Section enables the determination if Veteran experience differs based on informational needs and usage patterns during the ongoing servicing of a benefit

Identify usage of available information sources

Identify most preferred communication channel for benefits information

Measures the frequency of communications received from VA about their benefits

Assess Veterans' preferred communication methods

These items will be used in the development of the index model, which will determine the factors that have the largest impact on the overall Veteran experience with the Servicing of their benefit.

Determine if Veteran experience differs based on the level of contact and issue resolution during the ongoing benefit servicing

Assess whether or not contact occurred

Evaluate the reason for the call

Assess the nature of the call

Allows us to measure the satisfaction with various methods of communication

Allows us to measure issue resolution

Allows us to identify the reasons why issues were not resolved

These items will be used in the development of the index model, which will determine the factors that have the largest impact on the overall Veteran experience with the Servicing of their benefit.

Determine if Veteran experience differs based on the level of engagement with VBA after the beneficiary is in receipt of a claim
Measure the level of engagement with VBA during the ongoing servicing of a benefit

Measure the effectiveness of various methods of submitting a claim

Measure Veterans' receipt of the letter that is sent to upon claim submittal

Allows us to measure the efficacy of the letter in terms of the letter's usability

Allows us to determine if the Veteran had an additional level of engagement with VBA related to the letter

Allow us to determine if the Veteran had an additional level of engagement with VBA related to having to provide additional or duplicate information

Allows us to determine if the Veteran had an additional level of engagement as a result of having to schedule a medical examination

Measures Veteran perception of the relevance of the exam

Measures receipt of benefit payments

Measures receipt of information related to interruptions or termination of benefit payments

These items will be used in the development of the index model, which will determine the factors that have the largest impact on the overall Veteran experience with the Servicing of their benefit.

This item will be used in the development of the index model and will assist in creating an overall satisfaction score at the benefit servicing level.

This item will be used in the development of an index model for VBA overall across benefit lines and benefit status types (enrollment and servicing).

Rationale

Satisfaction with the servicing experience may be higher or lower dependent upon Veterans' informational needs and usage patterns after their benefit has been awarded. The informational needs and usage patterns will be determined in this section. These questions will help us differentiate Veteran satisfaction based on benefit informational needs and usage, identify areas where improvements to the process can occur and prioritize them based on the impact of the Benefit Information factor to overall Veteran satisfaction.

This will be used to assess Veteran point-of-entry and most frequent source for finding information about VA benefits and to evaluate usage patterns. This information will be used in the context of overall satisfaction with benefit information, including ease of accessing, availability, usefulness, and clarity of information and identifying information sources where any of these attributes has the potential for improvement.

This question will assess the optimal channel of communications to help maintain an optimal communication strategy for outreach to Veterans about their benefits.

This question will assess the optimal frequency of communications, in addition to the number of communications, to help maintain an optimal communication strategy for outreach to Veterans about their benefits.

This question will help to assess the most desired methods of communication about VA benefits or services and help guide the strategy for information outreach to Veterans.

Satisfaction with the benefit information represents one of the main elements of Veterans' experience with the ongoing servicing of their benefit. These items represent key attributes in the ongoing servicing process and will be compared to other factors to determine the areas of improvement with the greatest overall impact. These metrics will also allow us to compare the experience of Veterans with different information usage patterns and informational needs during the ongoing servicing of their benefit.

Satisfaction with the servicing experience may be higher or lower dependent upon Veterans' level of contact and issue resolution after their benefit has been awarded. The level of contact will be determined in this section. These questions will help us differentiate Veteran satisfaction based on level of contact and issue resolution, identify areas where improvements to the process can occur and prioritize them based on the impact of the Contact factor to overall Veteran satisfaction.

This question allows us to assess whether or not someone has had a contact with VA about their benefit recently enough to evaluate their experience with the contact. Individuals who have had recent contact with VA about their benefit may exhibit different levels of satisfaction than those who have not had recent contact. This question allows us to assess the variation between these two groups.

The reason for calling may contribute to the satisfaction related to the call experience. It is important to understand how satisfaction varies based on the type of call. This information will be used in conjunction with the VBA Call Center Satisfaction Research to analyze methods of contact/resolution.

Understand the specific reason for the call to help identify potential needs of various groups of Veterans and the ability of VA to respond to those needs. This information may assist in developing actionable recommendations for training, information communication, etc. This information will be used in conjunction with the VBA Call Center Satisfaction Research to analyze methods of contact/resolution.

Veterans' experiences with contacting VA may differ based on the method they use for contact. This may highlight contact methods that are used most frequently by Veterans and help identify processes VA can use to optimize those communication channels.

Veterans who have their issue resolved upon contacting VA may have different levels of satisfaction than those who do not have their issue resolved. This will allow us to set benchmarks for issue resolution and identify areas where contact can be improved based on the reason or nature of the call. This information will be used in conjunction with the VBA Call Center Satisfaction Research to analyze methods of contact/resolution.

This is important because it allows us to evaluate the reasons why there may be different levels of resolution depending on the nature and or reason for the call and assist in developing actionable courses of action based on study results.

Satisfaction with Contacting VA represents one of the main elements of Veterans' experience with the ongoing servicing of their benefit. These items represent key attributes in the ongoing servicing process and will be compared to other factors to determine the areas of improvement with the greatest overall impact. These metrics will also allow us to compare the experience of Veterans with different levels of contact during the ongoing servicing of their benefit.

Satisfaction with the servicing experience may be higher or lower dependent upon the level of interaction a Veteran has with VBA after their benefit has been awarded. The level of interaction will be determined based on the various experiences a Veteran might have after they are in receipt of a claim. Questions focused on these various experiences will help us differentiate Veteran satisfaction based on the various touch points related to their benefit entitlement, identify areas where improvements to the process can occur and prioritize them based on the impact of the Benefit Entitlement factor to overall Veteran satisfaction.

Veteran satisfaction with the benefit servicing experience may differ based on whether or not they submitted a claim for an increase in benefits. This question will be used to determine variation in the Veteran experience.

Among those who submitted a claim, Veteran satisfaction may differ based on the method they used to submit the claim. This will help to identify areas where Veterans are experiencing difficulty with the process and potential opportunities for improvement.

This question will be used to document receipt of the letter that is sent upon claim submittal and evaluate how receipt of the document may tie to the Veteran experience.

Veteran satisfaction may differ based on whether they had difficulty understanding the information provided in the standard form letter. Since information in the letter is intended to assist Veterans, this information will also help us understand if the letter is serving the intended purpose.

Veterans who felt the letter was not completely clear may reach out to VBA for clarification. This question will be evaluated based on the Veterans' level of satisfaction to determine whether or not the additional level of contact impacts the Veterans' experience positively or negatively.

Veteran satisfaction may differ based on whether or not they have to provide additional information as a supplement to their original claim. This will help us identify an area of potential improvement based on a comparison of levels of satisfaction between those who did have to submit additional information versus those who did not.

Veteran satisfaction may differ based on whether or not there were additional requirements that had to be completed in order to process the claim.

Veteran satisfaction may differ based on whether they perceive the exam to be appropriate to address the claimed condition(s).
Current need from the line of business to understand perception of the exam as related to CPAP.

This question is used to determine if there is variation in Veteran satisfaction based on whether or not interruptions to benefit payments occur.

This questions is used to determine if satisfaction is different between those who receive information about interruptions/termination of benefit payments versus those who do not receive information. This may be an area where a best practice and or benchmarks related to payment interruptions can be identified.

Satisfaction with the benefit entitlement represents one of the main elements of Veterans' experience with the ongoing servicing of their benefit. These items represent key attributes in the ongoing servicing process and will be compared to other factors to determine the areas of improvement with the greatest overall impact. These metrics will also allow us to compare the experience of Veterans with different levels of engagement with VBA during the ongoing servicing of their benefit.

All factors will be assessed in the context of the overall satisfaction score to understand the relative importance of each factor on Veterans' overall satisfaction.

Overall satisfaction with each benefit line at the enrollment and servicing level will be evaluated in the context of the overall experience with VA to understand the relative impact of different experiences across benefit lines.

Veterans with a more positive experience with the benefit line and VA overall may be more likely to positively advocate VA to their peers. This question will help identify changes in advocacy based on changes in the level of satisfaction over time.

Veterans' may have additional information related to their experience that will help understand and interpret their overall experience. This may include elements of the experience that are not easily captured in quantitative form.

Veterans who have different experiences in the ongoing services of their benefit may have different levels of satisfaction or exhibit different needs based on how they are using their benefit payment. For example, someone who is using their benefit payment for savings may be less impacted than someone who is using it for a rent/mortgage payment. This helps assess Veterans' needs.
