TITLE OF INFORMATION COLLECTION: Customer Satisfaction Survey for Rural Health Day 2021 Seminar (NCCIH)

PURPOSE:

The NIH Rural Health Committee is interested in assessing the efficacy of our annual Rural Health Day event. We plan to reach out to attendees of the 2021 Rural Health Day Seminar to complete an optional post-seminar survey. The purpose of this survey is to gauge the efficacy of the event and its structure (e.g., online platform) and to gauge the interests and topics that attendees hope future Rural Health Day events will direct their focus.

The NIH Rural Health Committee has an interest in whether we are meeting the needs of the Rural Health Day attendees. If there are unmet needs or suggestions, the NIH Rural Health Committee may use these data to shape content and features of future Rural Health Day events. All responses will be kept secure to the extent permitted by law and no identifiers will be collected.

This information will be collected through a standard “form” template and data will be collected and stored in an Excel spreadsheet. The data will be stored on a secure server, with all the standard protocols for keeping information and data private and safe. This project is a small, discreet evaluation effort. The Rural Health Committee will produce a final report with aggregated data.

DESCRIPTION OF RESPONDENTS:

Respondents will only include individuals who registered for the 2021 NIH Rural Health Day Seminar. Previous NIH Rural Health Day seminars have attracted many interested parties including, but not limited to: clinical researchers, public health employees, members of the public, advocates, policymakers, journalists, and NIH Employees.
