The proposed legislation modifications are fair and expected. Of course, there are many training requirements that will be relevant to collaborating with other agencies and this may include providing information on how to potentially help with process improvements needed. It is a good idea to have a fresh set of eyes from an unbiased perspective of various aspects of the government's processes and policies.

Yes, I have felt the hardship of unjust treatment in the past, and I did not move forward to act. I just wanted to move on and live my best possible life.

Over the last five to six years, things changed and I became more unhappy about issues that were uncovered and witnessed, and I sought help from many resources and requested an investigation into the matter. Therefore, I continued to press onward working on Reginfo.gov and Regulations.gov and I wanted my voice to be heard. My professional background of commercial pricing analysis for banking clients and Treasury Management sales, has been a major factor in reviewing existing contracts for extension and policies applicable to reply comments that are my perspective from day one. This is not just about consistency, it is also about regulations and the need to abide by laws and requirements in place.

Within the last six years, I have uncovered so many things that are "just not right" and things that are unlawfully done and I know I can make a difference with providing input to improvements and positive changes.

Best regards,

Kelly Moore
