General Comment

As a senior citizen myself, with an 85 year old mother who relies on social security and who has mobility issues, I am demanding that there be no cuts or changes to any area of social security. Obviously, no cuts to monies received by recipients, but also no cuts that will limit the number of offices or personnel.

Many older Americans are not tech savvy enough to have to create an account, set up complicated pins, wait on the phone for 2-3 hours, etc... There are no valid reasons for making these changes except to make it harder for Americans to access social security. If they are unable to decipher the tech issues, then you are requiring them to travel to an office - which many are incapable of doing, including my mother.

We paid in social security and it is our money. Stop raiding it for other things. If you want to make a change, make the wealthy pay their fair share and remove the cap.
